For Third Straight Year, Brookfield Global Relocation Services' Research Ranked Among the World's Best

Two of the Top Five Surveys Worldwide Belong to Brookfield Global Relocation Services, According to Expatica HR

Woodridge, Ill., Feb. 22, 2011 -- Brookfield Global Relocation Services today announced that for the third straight year, its comprehensive surveys and reports have been ranked among the top five human resource surveys worldwide by Expatica HR. This year, Brookfield Global Relocation Services had two surveys ranked in the top five worldwide – the only company to have more than one included.

Uniquely qualified to analyze the numerous human resources surveys, Expatica's panel of judges comprise a who's who list of authoritative sources on human resources, including judges from the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Australia, as well as Natasha Gunn, Expatica HR Editor and Editor-in-Chief of Expatica.com.

The awards recognize excellence across the entire HR spectrum including, but not limited to, international HRM, international management, compensation, policy and practices, technology, training, measurement, and talent management.

Brookfield Global Relocation Services received the awards for its 2010 Global Relocation Trends Survey Report as well as its Spotlight Report: International Employee Mobility in the New Decade. Both reports can be found in the company's Knowledge Center.

These award-winning reports are part of a larger body of research that Brookfield Global Relocation Services makes available to clients and complements the company's core service offering: Managing domestic and international relocation and assignment services throughout the world.

"International mobility programs are a huge, and complex, undertaking for companies, and they require the very best research and consulting services available," said Rick Schwartz, president of Brookfield Global Relocation Services. "We're honored that our research continues to receive such prestigious recognition, and we're especially pleased that it has become an invaluable tool for the HR professionals throughout the world who face the significant challenges of managing international mobility programs on a day to day basis."

For the past 16 years, Brookfield Global Relocation Services has published its Global Relocation Trends Survey report, which has become the definitive study of companies' employee-relocation practices, policies and projections. The 2011 annual report will be released in the coming weeks. Like its predecessors, the survey will paint a comprehensive picture of evolving trends and emerging issues facing companies of all sizes that rely on an international workforce. The 16 years of data enables Brookfield Global Relocation Services to track year-over-year comparisons against historical averages.
